

Carrot and his Revenge

Once in a small and frightened village called Cleeve Prior there lived a scary dragon. The dragon was bloodthirsty, cold-hearted and ferocious. Its teeth were as sharp as a spike and its roar was like a rumble of thunder. It lived in a secret deep dark and dangerous underground cave. When the dragon was in his underground cave he was off guard and so he wouldn't notice if someone came in the cave. The dragon also liked to sleep on gold.

One day the dragon roared flame at a poor little house where Mr and Mrs James lived with their son Carrot. Carrot was a clever and cunning young man and he was gifted by the way that he could sneak up on anything and not be noticed. Carrot was angry because of the dragon so he decided to kill the dragon and so he did just that.

First he heard a folk myth that was that dragons liked to sleep on gold. So Carrot got all of his gold and placed it where the dragon would find it. Then he hid in a nearby house. Carrot could hear the stomps of the dragon and suddenly the dragon appeared ferocious and wild. The dragon saw the pile of gold and picked it up with one hand and turned around and stomped back to his underground layer. Carrot quickly followed, knife in hand.

Carrot followed the dragon right through the village and finally he came to the lair. Carrot hid in a corner of the dragons lair and watched the dragon as it slowly went to sleep. When it was finally snoring on it's colossal pile of gold, Carrot suddenly jumped and stabbed the dragon through the heart with the knife. The dragon let out a roar that made the village of Cleeve Prior shake.

Carrot decided to chop off the dragons head and that's what he did. He chopped off the dragons head and hung it up in a pole in the middle of Cleeve Prior to remind him that he killed the dragon. With the pile of gold that he had got from the dragon he brought a wonderful and huge house on the edge of Cleeve Prior.
